Vintage 2019

The 2019 vintage was marked by intermittent heatwaves in late June and July, but the clay-limestone soil helped the vines endure. Although an early harvest was expected, weather conditions slowed ripening, leading to a normal start on September 26. Fermentation went smoothly, and after a few months of aging, the vintage developed a unique character. The initially strong tannins softened, resulting in a well-structured wine with ripe black fruit aromas.
